

Which part of published findings can be independently replicated?

* The data on economics is about reproducibility; i.e. the attempt to get the same results if you apply the original data analysis on the original data set.